"SEND ROOSEVELT OVER" IS APPEAL OF FORMER FRENCH PREMIER TO PRESIDENT WILSON

Clemenceau Urges This Nation Not to Overlook the Legendary Power That Surrounds Name of Ex-President Among the Soldiers of Invaded France: Says It Would be Unwise Not to Make Use of It at This Time.

SOLDIERS ASK EACH OTHER "WHERE IS HE?"

THEODORE ROOSEVELT

By Associated Press.

PARIS, May 28.—Former Premier Clemenceau in an open letter to President Wilson, printed in his paper, L'homme Enchaîné, appeals to the President to send over Colonel Roosevelt and "his companions."

Mr. Clemenceau says: "In invaded France at the present hour there is a name which represents, by I know not what force of intuition, the beauty of America's intervention—it is that of Roosevelt. You are too much a philosopher not to know that great popular leaders have influenced men out of all proportion to their own real value by the intangible atmosphere of legend which with or without their assistance has formed about them."

"Whatever may be the reason and without attempting to analyze the phenomenon, I yield to the imperious need to tell you that the name of Roosevelt has in our country at this time a legendary power. It would be an enormous error in my view to neglect a force which everything urges us to make use of as soon as possible."

"We have learned that the first American unit arrived at the front and with what zest generals and privates saluted the noble starred banner. However you should know, Mr. President, that more than one stout chevroned poilu said to his comrade in an astonished voice:

"But where is Roosevelt? I don't see him."

ITALIANS FIGHT WAY

CLOSER TO TRIEST
The Italians have fought their way forward to within two miles of Dufno, the most formidable natural barrier between them and Triest. The great battle now centers its 18th day without any sign of an abatement in the fury of the struggle. Vienna authorities refuse to concede the Italian victories but the map tells the story of General Cadorna's steady advance.

Quino at the gates, of which the Italian guns are now hammering, marks a point at which the Carso plateau almost touches the sea. Protected by the ocean on the one side it is powerfully defended to the north by Mount Quierento, a height of considerable magnitude which dominates the country for many miles. At the foot of Mount Quierento, facing west, lies the little town of Medenizza and the Italian have smashed their way to within a few hundred yards of this village. It is possible that a full will occur before they attempt the formidable task of storming Mt. Quierento.

From no other theatre of the war comes any news of importance but the political situation continues of absorbing interest.

Dispatches from Brazil indicate that it is merely a question of days if not hours before the Brazilian parliament follows the lead of the administration and aligns the 11 nations now fighting the Central Powers. At the same time a new crisis is threatened between Spain and Germany through the sinking of the Spanish passenger ship with heavy loss of life. This occurred on the heels of an announcement from Madrid that Germany had given satisfactory assurances in reply to Spain's latest note regarding the destruction of Spanish ships.

SCOTSDALE MOURNS DEATH OF FORMER CONGRESSMAN KEISTER

Legislator, Coal and Coke Operator and Philanthropist Passes Away Saturday.

ASSISTED MANY CHURCHES

Special to The Courier.
SCOTSDALE, May 28.—Abraham Lincoln Keister, former Congressman, philanthropist, coal and coke operator and banker, died at his home on Pittsburgh street on Saturday evening after but a few days illness. He was 65 years old.

The body will lie in state at the family home from 2 until 9 o'clock P. M. on Tuesday. The funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock with private interment afterward. The services will be conducted by Rev. J. E. Hunk, pastor of the local United Brethren church, and Dr. W. R. Pink, of Dayton, O.

Mr. Keister was born on September 10, 1852, on a farm in Upper Tyrona township a son of Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Keister. He was educated in the public schools of Fayette county, and at Otterbein University, at Westerville, Ohio. He was admitted to the bar but practiced little. In 1886 he located in Scottdale and engaged in the coal and coke business. His father, Solomon Keister, was a pioneer coke operator.

Mr. Keister represented the Westmoreland district in Congress for two successive terms, having been a member of the 63rd and 64th congress. His record there was unexcelled by any other Westmoreland congressman.

Mr. Keister's charities were known far and wide, not that he chose to advertise them but because of his generosity and ever-readiness to assist in any good cause. The people of Scottdale and the surrounding section mourn the loss of one who was loved by his fellow men. Mr. Keister united with the United Brethren church while a student at Otterbein and later affiliated himself with the United Brethren church at Scottdale. He supported various churches in that section. After the death of his father he continued to pay the elder Keister a stipend to the Westmoreland church and was also a patron of the Mount Pleasant United Brethren church and was paid to him by the members there at the service yesterday after his death had been announced.

Deceased was always interested in the public schools and served as a school director in Scottdale for 25 years, resigning when he went to Congress. He was prominent in educational circles and had the degree of LL. D. conferred on him by his alma mater in 1915. The fact that he annually donated $3,000 to the library he established in Scottdale did not he come known until after his death. In fact, most of his donations to charities and public institutions were known to but few.

Among Mr. Keister's philanthropic was the presentation of a $15,000 library to the public schools and residents of Scottdale. He also presented libraries to various Sunday schools.

At the time of his death he was president of the Scottdale First National bank and president of the Lincoln Coal and Coke company. He was unmarried.

Mr. Keister's only sister, Mrs. J. S. Mills, widow of the late Bishop J. S. Mills, of the United Brethren church, died last October. The following brothers survive: Albert Keister, of Scottdale, B. F. and L. O. Keister, who are connected with the First National bank, Trust company and the Lincoln Coal & Coke company, Rev. Lawrence Keister, D. D., a retired United Brethren minister, until two years ago president of the Lebanon Valley college, Annville, Pa.

MAY PROHIBIT SUNDAY MOVIES

Band Playing in Advertiser Theatrical Performance on Sabbath Incur His Displeasure.

That there are to be no more Sunday moving picture shows allowed for the benefit of regular churches, was indicated by Mayor R. Marietta this morning.

It is reported that the mayor did not like the idea of a band playing in front of a theatre to attract people on Sunday, at all. A band playing for a church may be all right but playing for a theatrical performance is another thing, he is reported to have said.

Incidentally the "Inferno" pictures for the benefit of the Italian Red Cross, played to two good sized houses at the Scottdale theatre. The prices charged for the Sunday show were 50 cents for men and 15 cents for women and children. No attempts were made to stop the show.

The Men's Christian League, meeting yesterday afternoon took no action on the subject of Sunday movies, but officials of the league are said to be working quietly against them. Several members referred to the Sunday movies during services yesterday.

FIRE HALTS SERVICE

Member's House Ablaze, Congregation Is Dismissed by Minister.

When the home of G. S. Getty at 591 East Patterson avenue caught fire last evening at about 8:15 o'clock, because of defective wiring, Mr. and Mrs. Getty were summoned from the Trinity Reformed church, where they were attending service, and Rev. C. E. Wagner discontinued his sermon and dismissed the congregation to allow the men to aid the Getty family. The impression prevailed that the house had been struck by lightning, and the natural thought was that Mr. Getty's aged mother and the Getty children who were at home would be in distress.

A son Mr. Getty had come to the church to tell them of the fire and he and his wife left quietly. Later some one called Getty's drug store and a messenger came to the church with the news that the Getty's home was ablaze. It was then that the minister dismissed the service. Men of the congregation on arriving at the house found that the firemen had already extinguished the small blaze.

Two wires crossed in the house are believed to have been the cause of the fire. The damage was practically nothing at all.

HOSPITAL CASES.

Mrs. Margaret Strange Admitted for Operation.

Mrs. Margaret Strange of the West Side was admitted to the Cottage State hospital Saturday for an operation for appendicitis. Miss Anna Forkl, of Franklin avenue, underwent an operation for a sigmoid uterus. Michael Yezzi of Danbury was admitted Saturday for treatment of pneumonia.

BIG TURNOUT AT MEMORIAL SERVICE IN THE U. B. CHURCH

Veterans, Ladies' Circle, D. A. R., and Boy Scouts Attend Church Sunday.

Rev. J. S. Showers yesterday morning preached the memorial sermon to the veterans of the Civil War in the United Brethren church. In addition to some 30 of the G. A. R. members who attended the services, there were large delegations from the Ladies' Circle of the G. A. R., the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Spanish-American War veterans, and the Boy Scouts. These visiting organizations filled more than half of the church auditorium, the Boy Scouts having a particularly large turnout with 97 boys, in addition to the scoutmasters, present. Many of the boys were in uniform. The Spanish war veterans had 11 at the service.

Rev. Showers in his talk undertook to prove that war at times is necessary and is justifiable. "The sword," he said, "has its use. Those who declare that there is no place for the sword in our civilization are mistaken. The sword when taken up in humanity's cause is a righteous sword, and its use thus is not only permitted, but demanded by the scriptures." The Civil War veterans, and the soldiers of the present war, he said, are fighting with a righteous sword.

Rev. Showers spoke at length of the marvels of our civilization today, voicing his hope that out of the great war would come an even greater civilization, and a greater Christianity. He devoted some time to a discussion of the glories of "old England," speaking of America as England's only son. After paying tribute to the veterans present, and to the soldiers whose graves they are to decorate on Wednesday, Rev. Showers returned to the subject of the great war of today, quoting a poem of Walt Whitman's written on the occasion of Uncle Sam's entry into the fray and printed in The Courier.

The music for the service was furnished by the choir of the United Brethren church and the Methodist Episcopal Sunday school orchestra. Lester Crawford sang a solo. The congregational singing was confined to three patriotic hymns, "The Red, White and Blue," "America," and "The Star Spangled Banner."

The church auditorium was entirely filled for the service, and there were many people standing. Small flags were distributed, and the decorations were in the national colors. Places at the front of the church were reserved for the special organizations present.

CHILD RUN DOWN

Annet Dull Injured When She Steps In Front of Roadster.

While running across South Pittsburgh street directly in the rear of a north-bound automobile Saturday evening, Annet Marie Dull, the five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dull, ran directly in front of a south-bound light Buickmobile loaded, driven by Fred Gans. She was struck by the headlight and thrown under the car, the rear wheel passing over her shoulder, dislocating it and inflicting several contusions upon her head and body.

The accident occurred immediately in front of the child's home. She was given prompt medical attention and is reported to be making steady progress in recovery from her injuries which, while painful, are not believed will be serious.

Picket Picked in M-I-Lion.

At Gallatin reported to the police the theft of $36 from his pockets, said to have occurred while he was attending the Italian mission on Highland avenue yesterday. Chief of Police Trotter is inclined to discredit the story, since he says that usually none but children attend the mission and they would hardly be pickpockets. The man probably lost the money, he says.

DEATH TOLL IN TORNADES IS OVER 125

Seven States of Middle West and South Swept by Storm in Last Three Days.

100 KILLED ON SUNDAY

Latest of Series of Storms Starts in Southwestern Illinois; Hits Kentucky, Mississippi, Arkansas, Tennessee and Alabama; Wires Down.

By Associated Press.
Tornadoes during the last three days in seven states of the middle west and the south have killed more than 125, injured more than 1,200, wrecked thousands of houses, killed hundreds of head of live stock and devastated many thousands of acres of crops, according to summaries early today.

The latest in the series of tornadoes started Sunday afternoon, apparently in the vicinity of Willville in Southwestern Illinois, swept across the Ohio river into Kentucky, down the Mississippi into Arkansas and Tennessee and finally veered eastward toward Alabama where it apparently spent itself.

The dead in the four southern states was roughly estimated at 100 and the injured at several thousand. Wire communication into the district swept by the storm Sunday is demoralized and only meagre reports of the loss of life and property damage have been received.

The destruction began last Friday in Andale, Kansas, where 26 people were killed and 60 injured.

Last Saturday a twister, probably the most severe of the series, struck the corn belt of Central Illinois, killing 54 and injuring perhaps 800 in Macon. At Charleston, 10 miles east of Macon, 27 were killed and more than 150 injured. The property damage in the two cities is estimated at $2,000,000. Another destructive storm late Saturday crossed a territory approximately 100 miles of the center of Illinois, reached into Northern Indiana and caused the loss of a dozen lives, the injury of more than 200 and heavy property damage.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 28.—Reports today from the devastated territory on the four southern states swept by tornadoes yesterday and last night placed the deaths at 103 and the injured at more than 300. Telegraphing and telephone communication of scores of points has not been restored, but news trickling into the larger towns indicated that damage was heavy.

None of the larger cities in the territory was seriously effected. The tornadoes took their heaviest toll apparently in the country around Hickman, Tenn., where 49 were reported killed and more than 50 injured.

TROTTER MAN IS FOUND DEAD ALONG ROAD NEAR HOME

Frank Monosky Believed to Have Been Struck by Automobile and Killed.

Frank Monosky, 29 years old, of Trotter, was found dead near the Trotter store yesterday morning about 3:30 o'clock with his neck and shoulder broken and a fractured skull. The body was leaning against a water plug about six feet away from the road.

Whether Monosky was killed outright by an automobile and his body carried to the side of the road or whether he was badly injured and left there to die, probably will never be known. So far as is known one saw the accident and the identity of the car occupants will never be learned unless they make themselves known. Colonel S. H. Baum examined the body and expressed the opinion that Monosky was struck by an automobile.

The body was found in a sitting posture by Lance Lint, a butcher employed at the Trotter store, who was on his way home. Lint called William Wisbart, the store manager, who lives directly across the road from the store, and the latter notified Funeral Director J. L. Stader. The body was removed to the latter's funeral parlors and prepared for burial. Later it was removed to the home of Joseph and Constance Monosky, the parents, at Trotter.

Frank Monosky was born at Trotter and has lived there all his life. He had been employed as a machinist by the H. C. Trotter Coke company. Monosky stated he had about 1 o'clock with several friends and was left by himself near the Trotter store. He is thought to have gone but a short distance before being struck by the machine.

Funeral from the house tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock and from the Holy Trinity Polish church in the West Side about 4:30 o'clock. Interment in the Holy Trinity cemetery.

"Sober for Keeps and the Happiest Man in the Country."

A Letter of Appreciation From Former Patron of the Neal Institute.

"I think I am the happiest man in the country," writes a graduate of the Neal Institute to the physicians in charge.

"I have never had the least appetite for drink. My business calls me in saloons but it is no temptation whatever. If you ever see me in after years you will see a sober and a thankful man."

This man, freed from the power of drink—adds that his family and friends are all delighted with the marvelous change in him.

The Neal treatment does change the whole course of a drinking man's life. It lifts him out of the depths of despair and weakens and restores him to the high planes of manhood and self-control. It will take a man who just can't keep away from liquor—a man who drinks and drinks, and drinks just because he possesses a never-satisfying thirst and will change that restless desire into intense disgust for everything alcoholic. This is done in three days' time.

The Neal Treatment is a physician's harmless vegetable remedy, taken internally, with no dangerous hypodermic injections. Your own investigation is urged. Write for booklet to the Neal Institute, 373 Winebiddle Ave., Pittsburg, Pa. Phone Highland 1360. Open day and night. Other Neal Institutes located at Cleveland, Cincinnati and Detroit.—Adv

HICKEY WILL DRIVE HUDSON IN SPEEDWAY RACES ON MAY 30

Connellsville 'Car Expected to Make Good Showing in Memorial Day Events.

Connellsville will be represented in the Uniontown Speedway races Memorial Day by a Hudson Super-Six, formerly owned by Ira Vail and recently purchased and entered in the Memorial Day events by Manager C. C. C. of the Wells-Mills Electric Company. Vail drove the Hudson at Sheepshead Bay last year at a speed of 102 miles an hour and great things are expected of the car in the races Wednesday afternoon.

D. W. Hickey, a mechanic at the Wells-Mills garage, will drive the Hudson and his mechanic will be S. E. Porter. Mr. Hickey has been tuning up the car at the Speedway and he declares that the Super-Six is in fine condition.

The purchase of the Super-Six by the Wells-Mills company is one of a number of progressive steps by this concern which has been making unusual progress during the past few years. Two additional floors are being added to the garage on South Pittsburgh street and a large electric elevator is being installed, additions made necessary to care for the rapidly growing business.

The Wells-Mills company has the agency for the Overland and Hudson cars and the Rembrandt truck, and negotiations are going forward for new lines.

CAN'T USE STREETS

Autoists Must Park Cars in Parking Place by Order of Mayor.

Mayor R. Marietta in an effort to clean up the streets of parked automobiles and to popularize the municipal parking place on Apple street, is bidding the parking of automobiles, motorcycles, and vehicles of all kinds on the principal streets of the city. By city ordinance, a driver can stop his car for 15 minutes on any street, but parking for a longer period than that is to bring arrest. The streets included in the order are:

Pittsburgh street from Lincoln avenue to West Fayette street; Fayette street, from Prospect street to Water street; Water street, from Fayette street to Crawford avenue; Crawford avenue from Brimstone corner to Eighth street; West Side; Meadow lane from Church place to Peach street; Orchard alley, from Prospect street to Arch street; North Arch street, entire; Peach street, Apple street, and Church place.

Previously it has been the practice of autoists to park on all of these streets. Eventually the entire center of the city is now closed to them, and popularization of the parking place is made certain.

Another provision of the new order calls on drivers of all vehicles to move at once when requested to do so by street cleaners at work. The use of cutouts in the city is also prohibited. Mayor Marietta was indignant this morning on the subject of the cutout. Autoists go through town early in the morning he says, their cutouts wide open, walking everybody in the city up. This is to be stopped, he told the police.

Their Golden Wedding. Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Haddock, who are among the most prominent residents of the West Side, are celebrating their golden wedding anniversary today at their home 11 Tenth street. Mr. Haddock is a veteran of the Civil War.

Inspects Hotel Workers. Health Officer George Hetzel is passing out health cards to the employees of restaurants and hotels, who must be examined and found well to be permitted to work. The inspection is made twice a year.

THE LATEST STYLE CHALMERS JUST RECEIVED; Every Inch a Quality Car

This Chalmers of today is a car any man—millionaire or miner—proudly may own. For it not only acts quality, but looks quality.

$500 more buys no more quality than you can get in this Chalmers. Possibly more car—yes, but more quality—no.

And why should anyone want a heavier car? These are days to be sensible in purchasing. Remember a heavier car costs more to run.

It is well, to bear in mind that $500 less places you in the dangerous position of buying a skimpy or "starved" automobile. To pay $500 less is to postpone the day when you will own a quality car.

Just let us punctuate a few remarks about the Chalmers. Take the wheelbase—117 inches. Plenty of size there. Then the 5-inch frame. No weaving of body or frame now in crossing car tracks or turning a corner. Instead, severe rigidity—so severe that squeaks, rattles or chassis noises are not audible.

Underneath the rear seat a heavy, formidable rear axle. Overhead a Pantasote top that comes close to finality—and with four bows; not three.

A tilted windshield with plate glass. A front seat that is only 13½ inches from the floor. A rear seat that is only 14 inches. Tell that to the women of your home.

Better brakes—2 inches larger, if you please. And when you push down with your right foot you get results.

A larger steering wheel, dustproof bearings in the front wheels, all wiring encased in flexible armored tubing so that a short circuit in your ignition, or lighting, or starting is well-nigh impossible.

And each lamp now controlled by an individual fuse.

Then, too, the automatic lubrication of the engine controlled by the carburetor throttle so that the engine is getting oil directly in proportion to its load.

Any car that can do a mile in 38.1 seconds or at the rate of 94½ miles per hour as the Chalmers did on the beach at Jacksonville, Florida, which set a new time for cars of the 230 cubic inch class answers the question of speed even for the worst "fan" on the subject.

This time was made on May 4, 1917, by a Chalmers. It was of course stripped for racing purposes.

As for flexibility one need look no further. A car that traveled the highest traffic mileage ever reported in twenty-four hours through the heart of Chicago on high, or a car that webbed its way through Detroit's busy traffic at the rare low speed of 2.9 miles per hour for twenty-four hours without stopping the engine but once is a real performer.

This is just what this Chalmers did.

Come down to our show rooms and view the beauty they have drawn into this car. And then get behind the wheel for a little spin. You'll want your initials on the door inside of a mile.

All Chalmers cars are six-cylinder cars

SOLDIERS GUESTS AT FINE DINNER

Thirty Members of Company B Enjoy "Best Meal They Have Had for Two Months."

Thirty members of Company B, Third Regiment, of Philadelphia, were banqueted at Pritchard hall yesterday afternoon, and as the soldiers unanimously expressed it, "it was the best meal we have had for two months. Two dinners were served, one at 12 o'clock, and the other immediately after the soldiers then on duty had been relieved."

The soldiers marched in double formation from the barracks to the banquet hall. The first detail was in charge of Lieutenant Gilmore Hayman, and Sergeant Wilson. Sergeant Wilson also had charge of the second detail. Captain R. S. Morion of Company D attended as an honor guest.

Attorney John Duggan, Jr., gave a short talk to the soldiers at both dinners. He told them how much their services were appreciated by the residents of the city, and said the banquet served to convey the kindly feeling of the people in the city for them. Touching on the police duty the soldiers were doing he said: "We realize that yours is a duty of sacrifice, and that it is the hardest kind of work imaginable. We understand that it is something that does not appeal to the soldier, and know what a sacrifice you make in serving in this way."

During the dinner Miss Helen Belle Rush sang several selections. Her numbers were "Far From My Heavenly Home," "My Soldier Boy," "America, Here's My Boy," "Let's All Be Americans Now," "Miss Margaret Rush acted as accompanist. A military orchestra furnished music all afternoon. Patriotic airs were played.

The idea of the dinner originated with Foster Critchfield. He was assisted in the preparations by George Pritchard. Estates in large quantities were donated.

To Avoid Dandruff

You do not want a slow treatment for itching scalp when hair is falling out and the dandruff germ is killing the hair roots. Delay means—no hair. Get at any drug store, a bottle of zemo for 25c or $1.00 for extra large size. Use as directed, for it does the work quickly. It kills the dandruff germ, nourishes the hair roots and immediately stops itching scalp. It is a pure, reliable, antiseptic liquid, is not greasy, is easy to use and will not stain hair. Scabs and shampoos are harmful as they contain alkali. The best thing to use for scalp irritations is zemo, for it is safe and also inexpensive. The R. W. Hays Co., Elizabeth, O.

BACKACHE SOON DISAPPEARED

Could Not Do Housework Till Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Removed Cause.

Fort Fairfield, Maine.—"For many months I suffered from backache caused by female troubles so I was unable to do my housework. I took treatments for it but received no help whatever. Then some of my friends asked why I did not try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so and my backache soon disappeared and I felt like a different woman, and now have a healthy little baby girl and do all my housework. I will always praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to women who suffer as I did."—Mrs. ALTON D. OAKES, Fort Fairfield, Maine. When a remedy has lived for forty years, steadily growing in popularity and influence, and thousands upon thousands of women declare they owe their health to it, is it not reasonable to believe that it is an article of merit? If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened and read by women only.

SHARING HONORS WITH CO. D.

That Company D has not been recruited up to full war strength has not been due, as has been intimated, to the lack of a genuine patriotism upon part of the young men in this vicinity. It has, we believe, been due more to lack of understanding of the real needs of our country in the present situation coupled, perhaps, with a refusal to believe that the service the Tenth regiment may have to perform will be no more active and inspiring than several months of "irregular" duty in a mobilization camp, Virginia, to that on the Texas border last summer.

There are, of course, other influences which have kept many eligible young men from enlisting. Aware that out of those who register under the conscription law only about one in 20 will be drafted upon the first call, a number are disposed to take chances of being drafted rather than enlisting voluntarily. They would prefer, it appears, to take the risk of being assigned after draft to a strange command, rather than taking membership with a unit in which they have acquaintances or friends among the officers and men comprising it.

While service with a company commanded by strange officers or composed of men gathered from widely separated sections of the country may and will be just as worthy and useful as service with a home organization, the former lacks some of the elements which tend to take the rough edges off soldiering. There is a community interest and pack which follows a home organization which in the very nature of things cannot go out to a company in which there may chance to be but a few men from a single locality. The Red Cross and other agencies look after the comforts of the soldiers of Uncle Sam without favor or distinction as to whence the different commands come, but the home organizations have the added advantage of having a large number of warm-hearted friends, "back home" who are always eager to supply little attentions and wants for which the Red Cross makes no provision.

The business of soldiering in active service needs just such ministrations and heart touches as "the folks at home" can give to relieve it of much of its irksomeness. The commands which are formed from an indiscriminate assignment of recruits is, in a large sense, removed from this form of contact with friends and the members of such commands are constantly reminded, by the absence of it, that they are at the business of soldiering without expectation of receiving those touches which lighten the daily grind.

To those, therefore, who are subject to draft either within the next few months when the first call comes, or within a few other months when another call will come, and perhaps still others, the opportunity for service with Company D, in preference to service with a drafted command, ought to appeal as in every way more desirable and greatly to be preferred.

You have pride in your home town and its institutions. Company D is one of them and with an honorable record. Share in the new honors which Conneltsville knows full well will come to it in the service upon which it is soon to enter!

WHY HONORABLE DRAGS.
Secretary McAdoo's trip through the west to discover the reasons for the apathy of the people on the Liberty Bond subscription discovered what every well posted citizen already knew. The policy of the Administration to throw upon business and industry of the country the payment by direct taxation of approximately $2,000,000,000, or 53 per cent of the estimated cost of the war during the first year, has been so much in disfavor that the people have not enthused over the proposition that they at the same time absorb the $2,000,000,000 bond issue.

The war revenue bill, which was reported as an Administration measure, created a feeling of alarm among business men. Instead of inspiring them with confidence, to mention nothing of the feeling of resentment toward the Southern Democrats in Congress who have made no concealment of their purpose to saddle the cost of the war on that section of the country north of the Mason and Dixon line. This found such emphatic expression in the successful objection to a tax on cotton that the business interests of the North, willing though they be to bear their full share, are decidedly unwilling that the South shall escape paying its share.

There is established in business circles the well defined impression that the first effects of the bill, if enacted as proposed, would have been to hamper business and slow down production. The ultimate effect would be to absorb the profits of business and manufacture that there would be no money left with which to assist the government in financing the war.

Since Secretary McAdoo has come in closer contact with the people on this proposition the Administration has come to a realization that the enforced enactment of the revenue bill as originally drawn would be a financial and political mistake and tend

See What is Ahead of You!

From Boston Herald.

War is bad business, but don't you ever make the mistake of thinking that war means bad business. It has lately become the foremost employer of labor and the leading customer of commerce.

It takes a dozen farmers, mechanics, trainmen, butchers, bakers, tailors and shoemakers to maintain a soldier.

We can't put a million men under arms without putting at least twelve million other men under the eight-hour clock.

We must build cruisers, east cannon, produce rifles, tin meat, raise food, weave khaki, pack surgical kits, cobble footwear, construct motor cars, extend transportation, manufacture uniforms, knit socks, erect forts, roll armor plate, draw wire, mine metal and fuel, mix explosives, process chemicals, provide spades, picks and tractors, furnish ammunition, airplanes, electrical equipment in such quantities that existing capacities will stagger under the sudden burden.

Every trade and every branch of trade, from Baggot to Bellingham and from cannery to foundry, will soon be mobilized for the colossal task of transforming an industrial giant into a Titan warrior.

Within a few months we must accomplish what Germany required 30 years to do.

Think of it! More than a quarter of a century of preparation to be crowded into less than a year!

Factories must work day and night shifts, railroads will operate extra trains, produce will ride to port from every arable acre on the continent.

We have become the armory and the bread-box of our allies and we have called a host to the colors whose needs alone will total billions of dollars in food and raiment and weapons.

The biggest sum of money that ever poured from this country's treasury is about to flood the United States.

There will be work for everybody and everybody must work.

Get busy and keep busy. Hire new help, enlarge your plant, order machinery at once.

The government isn't counting expenses, but minutes.

Patriotism is flooding Washington with ready cash and Washington is shipping it in carload lots to the manufacturer and retailer. An unprecedented era of prosperity is around the bend.

greatly to paralyze business. The discovery has also been made that business men are disposed to husband their resources in anticipation of a condition of business stress following the imposition of burdensome taxation on the present generation, which feeling accounts for the disappointing returns from Liberty Bond subscriptions.

The Senate has awakened to the necessity of a radical revision in the revenue bill in order that business prosperity may be maintained and means become available to take care of the subsequent loans the war will oblige the government to make. Until the House accepts the changes suggested by the Senate, and makes provision to carry forward to future generations their fair share of the war cost, and distribute it evenly over all members of the country, the Liberty Bond campaign will drag along even more disappointingly.

COMMEMORATIONS AND THE WAR.
The approaching commencement exercises in the high schools of the United States ought to be memorable for their emphasis upon our country's place in the world war, and they will be memorable in this respect if the suggestion of the United States Bureau of Education is adopted. In a letter to the 15,000 high schools throughout the country Commissioner Claxton says: "The approaching commencement exercises of the high schools find the American people entering on a great world war. Before another commencement the nation will be tried by standards more exacting and tests more severe than to which this great democratic experiment has ever been subjected. No proper occasion should be neglected to give our people in every community, however isolated or apathetic, a firm grasp of the reasons that have moved a great nation to see that the issues of this struggle are vital to their own safety and to the preservation of democracy against the triumphs of autocracy."

We are now engaged in our first great task of military preparation and the pressing task of preparing to food and finance our own people and government and the peoples and governments now in the heat of a struggle that has become a struggle for the very life of the nation. It is thus fortified in spirit to play his or her part in times that will try men's souls.

Thus the commencement exercises in every school be better directed than towards an elevated and enlightened discussion of the faith in popular government now on trial for its life, a discussion which makes clear the passionate purpose and defiance by the President in his war address to Congress.

The nation must be held steadily to these high purposes despite the passions aroused by war. The American people must be made to see clearly that the world which is made over by this war is one in which we must take our place to co-operate with those who share our ideals of democracy and a world freed from the dangers of want, detested by tyrannical ambition or national policies based on a philosophy of war. If a world rent by war and its heritage of hatred is to be pointed towards the pathway of permanent peace, the American people must be ready to touch hands with all peoples who see in a sane mind a way to a good world, some sacrifice of national self-interest.

There should be a more general outpouring of our people at the commencement exercises than usual. The students of America have felt the patriotic thrill of the hour more quickly than any other group of our citizens and they have already filled their training camps of the country by thousands. They have made a vision of their duty, of which other and older people need to have more than a mere glimpse. A spirit of patriotism will pervade commencement exercises this year to a greater extent than ever before. Do present and let it infuse your heart with a touch of that warm glow which is moving the school and college boys of the land to unhesitatingly volunteer in the service of their country. Let the occasion inspire you to a quickened sense of duty in your sphere at home, however humble it may be, so that you may feel ready willingness to any call for sacrifice which all of us may sooner or later be required to make.

Let the occasion be one for the commencement of a new loyalty and devotion to Our Country and Our Flag, and the realization of our obligations to those who have gone, and are preparing to go forth in their defense.

No matter what church you attended yesterday you heard a patriotic sermon, a patriotic prayer and the inspiring strains of "America." You will discredited your religion if you don't do something for your country every day this week.

You have just eight more opportunities to escape registration and punishment. The army of Company D will be organized every evening until June 5 to receive recruits.

When a newspaper finds it necessary to discredit its editorial columns, the situation becomes one demanding the services of a censor, otherwise there is certain to arise a period of "real gloom" not the "manufactured" kind.

The Councilman war board has eliminated the heavy artillery from the Fourth of July bombardment.

The Dunbar township high school has reversed the usual order by furnishing more boys than girls as members of the graduating class. But it is the habit of the State of Dunbar to do unusual things, or to do usual things in an unusual way.

Far better for a boy to stretch the truth a little in order to enter than for a man to stretch his conscience and patriotism a good bit by some pretext to secure exemption from draft.

Put a ring around June 5 on the calendar so that you won't forget to run around to your polling place on that date and register.

June Fifth promises to become a close rival of July Fourth this year.

THE SHORT SKIRT.

The short skirt is a bob-tailed garment which is a descendant of the long, flowing, and voluminous skirt of the past. It has been declared unconstitutional by the police force. Some short skirts are shorter than others, but all are shorter than a man who is located two blocks away to tell the owner's feet could be whitened down several inches without destroying the "out" ensemble.

Until the last year or two the short skirt was not worn by anybody but school-girls under 12 years of age. Somebody discovered, however, that a woman 67 years old could be made to assume a very nice and high aspect by donning a skirt chopped off just below the knees, and early revealing a pair of imitation stilettos. The result is, therefore, that the streets of our villages, towns and cities are congested with feminine drummers, clad in high shoes and a bold, unscrupled look.

The short skirt illustrates how rapidly the times do change. A few years ago, if a tall, lanky, but bushy hunter had come down town and mingled with the gay throng in one of these skirts, the police would have thrown a 1212 gauge round his shoulders and taken her home in a closed carriage with the curtains lowered. If a mother caught her daughter of marriageable age on the street in a skirt that didn't flop around the ankles and collect more dust than a suitcase except a question arose, she would give her something to remember that wouldn't wear out for several days. Nowadays, however, nobody notices the short skirt except the street-crowd, who are usually numerous enough to answer all purposes.

A skirt that don't flop around the ankles and collect more dust than a suitcase except

There is a suspicion that the short skirt was introduced at the behest of the shoe trust, which took advantage of the situation and worked several dollars worth more of leather and green buttons into the high shoe. Inasmuch as this kind of a shoe never fits anywhere except around the sole, the effect is a good deal like plunging a walking-stick into a pair of rubber boots. Nevertheless, the short skirt has come to stay, whether old-fashioned folks like it or not, for it enables women to walk as if they were real human beings.

Meyersdale.

MEYERSDALE, May 28.—Sunday evening the annual May procession was held in SS. Philip and James Catholic church at which time the edifice was crowded to its utmost capacity. Amid the beautiful decorations, consisting of cut flowers and numerous candles, the children presented a very pretty scene. Miss Florence Heffley, acting as flower girl, delighted her address in a very able manner. She was followed by nine other girls who represented different flowers and spoke in the following order: Kathryn Bolden, Star of Bethlehem; Anna Kelly, Myrtle;
Dorothy McMillan, Rose; Marie
Shardt, Lily of the Valley; Adalaid
Reich, Lily; Marjorie Clark, Violet; Anna Frances Bolden, Arbutus; Helen Kemp, Lilac; and Clara Gauntz, the Wreath. Miss Mary Bolden was the May Queen. This was followed by the sermon which was delivered by Rev. Father Merz of Connelville.
Solemn benediction was then given by Rev. Father Gallagher of Westernport, as celebrant, Rev. Father James Quinn of Midland, deacon, and Rev.
Father John Brennan of Western-port, sub-deacon. Rev. Father Brady, the pastor, acted as master of ceremonies.

The Methodist Episcopal church was filled to overflowing Sunday evening when the pastor, Rev. Alexander Steele, preached the pro-memorial sermon to the veterans of all wars. Sons of Veterans and many of their friends. The veterans met at their hall on Center street and marched in a body to the church and were escorted to the front pews which were reserved for them.
Special music was rendered by the hyms. The American flag was in evidence everywhere as almost everybody present wore one as was requested. This was the best at-

D. B. T. VICTORS

High School Team Wins Close Game
Over Latrobe.

The Dunbar township high school baseball team added another game to its list of victories for this season when the Latrobe high team was defeated on the Latrobe grounds, Saturday, 5-4. The game was nip and tuck throughout. D. T. H. always scoring sufficient runs to throw them in the lead only to have the home team tie up in the next inning.

The first score was made in the second when the Latrobe team got two across the plate. Latrobe immediately tied up. Again in the fifth two more runs were scored by the township team and again Latrobe tied. The score was a tie until the eighth inning. In the township's half of that inning, Randolph doubled to left, and was sent across the plate by O'Laughlin's hit. Randolph, pitching for the township team, fanned 14
Latrobe batters.

Clean Culture in Gardens

Except for one Jethro Tull, gardening would be a lazy man's occupation, but the gardens would not bear good crops, says today's bulletin from the National Emergency Food Garden Commission, which is cooperating with The Courier in aiding war gardening in Con-nelville.

Old Jethro was an English farmer who lived many years ago. He accidentally discovered one season that if you stir up the soil around a plant it grows and produces better.

The modern science of farming is based largely on this discovery.
The modern scientists have discovered that cultivation opens up the soil to the air, which acts chemically upon the plant food in the soil, releasing it so that the roots can feed upon it. Moreover, a dust cover on the soil saves the moisture within the soil, by breaking the pump of capillary attraction whereby soil moisture is drawn to the surface and evaporated.

Now that the garden crops are beginning to show in their rows, it is time to start hoeing and cultivating them, and too much stress cannot be laid upon the importance of this. Those who first saw the results of hoeing thought them miraculous and exclaimed that hoeing is magic. And so it is, and water, too. It is much better to save the moisture in the soil than to water the garden frequently with the hose.

The hoe also kills the weed, which is the growing crop's deadly foe. The weed roots not only steal plant food and moisture from the roots of the valued vegetable, but they harbor plant diseases and also act as homes for insects destructive to garden plants. In a garden a weed should never be seen.

The new gardener can now tell if the soil of his garden needs drainage. Plants will not grow well with wet feet, whereas standing water will suffocate vegetation. The drainage is most thorough, but also most expensive. Ditches will usually drain off a dangerous excess of water.

THE PARAMOUNT.

"A MAGDALENE OF THE HILLS." A five part Metro drama starring Mabel Taliaferro, the charming screen star, is today's feature attraction. In the production Miss Taliaferro is seen as an emotional actress of rare power. In the production Miss Taliaferro is a type of the Southern girl. Her brother is killed and she vows to avenge his death. She tries to kill a wealthy young man from the East. He repays her with kindness and she falls in love with him. Then a tragedy takes place. The girl is arrested for murder. The young Easterner defends her and she is acquitted. Besides being wonderfully acted the play has splendid scenic settings. Miss Taliaferro considers the role of Bonnie Mathis the strongest of her screen career. Into her part she has put unusual power and beauty. A cast of remarkable excellence supports Miss Taliaferro. William Garwood has the leading part opposite the star. Other members of the cast are Frank Montgomery, William B. Davidson, William Black and Charles Brown. In addition to "Wrath," one of "The Seven Deadly Sins" Charlie Chaplin, the famous comedian will be seen Thursday in "The Grog," said to be one of the best comedies in which the popular actor has ever appeared.

BOSSON THEATRE.

"THE BIRTH OF PATRIOTISM." A special five reel attraction with Irene Hunt and Leo Peterson in the leading roles. It is an adaptation of the story "In the Tracks of the Storm," which appeared in the Saturday Evening Post. "The Voice on the Wire No. 11" will also be shown tomorrow. "The Mystery of the Double Cross No. 1" and "Vivian Reed in the five reel Selig drama, 'The Lad and the Lion.' Thursday Clara Kimball Young appears in "The Savage Instinct," a five reel World drama. The heart of the Blue Ridge country of Kentucky is particularly romantic spot. Unlawful stills, wild fighting men and a delightful love story makes this a charming drama.

ORPHEUM THEATRE.

"PRIDE AND THE DEVIL." A five reel Art drama featuring Alma Hinton. Also "The Crimson Stain Mystery" No. 13. Tomorrow the well known stars Holbrook Blinn and Doris Grey are featured in "The Empress" a five reel drama. Wednesday William Fox presents Stuart Holmes in "The Devillet." It is a picture of intense dramatic appeal. A five reel in this picture is a 1909 calendar, for the use of which the director had to deposit $10 as a guarantee that he would return the relic unharmed.

TRAFFIC OUTLOOK IS SHOWING SIGNS OF BRIGHTENING

Freight Congestion Makes Slight Changes for the Better.

THE PROGRESS IS SLOW

Principal Headway is Being Made in Clearing Yards That Have Been Encumbered for Two Years; Shippers Are Rendering Valuable Assistance.

For the first time in many months traffic conditions are improved. The improvement is not great but it is sufficiently marked to be encouraging to the railroads, particularly in the Pittsburgh district, where the congestion of freight has been especially severe and which next to the Jersey terminals has been the storm center, says J. A. Layman, railroad editor of the Pittsburgh Dispatch. Indications of the improved situation are in evidence throughout the district.

Progress slight as yet, but quite noticeable is being made in the task of clearing the yards of the traffic that has encumbered them for nearly two years, and unless something unforeseen and at present anticipated shall occur to prevent, a few weeks more will suffice to render movement much less difficult, even though conditions shall not become normal. If this anticipated expedition of traffic shall ensue, much of the perplexity to which both carriers and shippers have been subjected for so long will have been solved and operations of the railroads to the best interest of both will result speedily.

It is conceded that only the closest and most cordial cooperation will effect it and this is being accorded. Shippers are heeding the injunctions of the carriers and are loading more heavily than formerly and carriers are availing themselves of the fact by renewed efforts to forward shipments promptly, whereby much of theasperity that formerly existed between the two has been removed.

The shipper will have to forego the practice of loading cars in such manner and at such times as he wills, and the railroads will have to defer to the government in respect of operation, while the public deprived of many passenger trains will be afforded fewer opportunities for travel which will be discouraged in every way possible during the continuance of the war in order that the equipment may be conserved for the use of the military authorities in an emergency. Moreover, much motive power will be released thereby for use in freight transportation and toward meeting the requirements of the allied armies in Western Europe, estimated at 4000 locomotives, which this government has undertaken to supply. The continuation of passenger service which continues meantime, is helping the freight situation materially. With more motive power and men available for the latter service which will be added from time to time, it is expected that the freight situation will slowly but surely tend itself to improvement even though it will be far short of normal.

The Royal Woolen Mills Co.

109 North Pittsburg Street.

CONNELLSVILLE, PA.

By C. A. Volght.

Again Starbuck's reply translated itself into action. With a skillful touch of the controls he sent the car ahead at top speed, and for a matter of ten miles or more held a dominating lead in the race through steep good driving and an accurate knowledge of the road and its twistings and turnings. But the road would soon become a cart track in the mountains there was no outlet to the north save by means of the railroad bridge at Little Butte station, and from some where up the valley and beyond the railroad bridge came the distance softened whistle of a train.

Starbuck set a high mark for himself as a courageous driver of motor cars when he came to the last of the three road crossings. Jerking the car around sharply at the instant of truck crossing, he headed straight out over the ties for the railroad bridge. It was a coupling of death. To drive the bridge at racing speed was hazardous enough, but to drive it thus in the face of a downcoming train seemed nothing less than madness.

It was after the car had shot into the front of the three bridge spans that the pursuers pulled up and opened fire. Starbuck bent lower over his wheel, and Smith clutched for handholds. Far up the track on the north side of the river a headlight flashed in the darkness, and the hoarse blast of a locomotive, whistling for the bridge, echoed and re-echoed among the hills.

Starbuck drove for his life. With the bridge fairly crossed, he found himself on a high embankment; and the oncoming train was now less than half a mile away. Somewhere beyond the bridge approach there was a road; so much Starbuck could recall. If they could reach its crossing before the collision should come—

They did reach it, by what seemed to Smith a margin of no more than the length of the heavy freight train which went jangling past them a scant second or so after the car had been wrenched aside into the obscure mountain road. They had gone a mile or more on the reverse leg of the long down-climb before Starbuck cut the speed and turned the wheel over to his seatmate.

"Take her a minute while I get the makings," he said, dry-tipped, feeling in his pockets for tobacco and the ice paper. Then he added: "Holy Sotomoni! I never wanted a smoke so bad in all my life!"

Smith's laugh was a chuckle. "Gets next to you—after the fact—doesn't it? That's where we split. I had my share before we hit the bridge, and it tasted like a mouthful of bitter alone. Does this road take us back up the river?"

"It takes us twenty miles around through the Park and comes in at the head of Little creek. But we have plenty of time. You told Harding two hours, didn't you?"

"Yes; I must have a few minutes at Littleport before we get action Billy."

Starbuck took the wheel again and said nothing until the roundabout road had been fully run and he was coming the car down the last of the hills into the Little Creek road. There had been three-quarters of an hour of skilful driving over a bad road to come between Smith's remark and his reply, but Starbuck apparently made no account of the length of the interval.

"You're aiming to go and see Corry?" he asked, while the car was toiling to the hill bottom.

"Yes." "A sudden flick of this control and a quick jangling of the brakes, Starbuck brought the car to a stand just as it came into the level road. "We're man to man here under the canopy, John; and Corry Baldwin hasn't got any brother," he offered gravely. "I'm backing you in this business fight for all I'm worth—for Dick Maxwell's sake and the colonel's, and maybe a little bit for the sake of my own auto of twenty thousand. And I'm ready to back you in this old house scrap with all the money you need to make your fight. But when it comes to the little girl it's different. Have you any good and fair right to hunt up Corry Baldwin while there are shaping themselves up as they are?"

Smith met the shrewd inquiry fairly. "Give it a name," he said shortly. "I will: I'll give it the one you gave it a while back. You said you were an outlaw, on two charges; embroilment and assault. We'll let the assault go. But the other thing doesn't taste good."

"I thought I made that plain," Billy said solemnly. "So you did. But you also made it plain that the home court would be likely to send you up for it, guilty or not guilty. And with a thing like that hanging over you . . . you see, I know Corry Baldwin, John. If you put it up to her tonight, and she happens to fall in with your side of it—which is what you're aiming to make her do—well, hell won't keep her from going back home with you and seeing you through!"

"Billy, I may never see her again. I would I wouldn't tell her—that I loved her too well to tell her—but now the final pinch has come, and I—"

"And that isn't all," Starbuck went on relentlessly. "There's this 'Miss Richman's. Your hands ain't clean, John; not clean enough to let you go to Littleport tonight!"

Smith groped in his pockets, found a cigar and lit it. "Pull out to the side of the road and we'll kill what time there is to kill right here," he directed soberly. And then: "What you say is right as right, Billy. Once more, I guess, I was too cool for the minute. Forget it; and while you're about it, forget Miss Richman, too. Luckily for her, she is out of it—as far out of it as I am."

CHAPTER XXVI.

Freedom.

On the northern bank of the Timanogon the Brewster street, of which the wagon bridge is a prolongation, becomes a country road, forking a few hundred yards from the bridge, approaching to send one of its branchings northward among the Little Creek ranches and another westward up the right bank of the stream.

At this fork of the road, between eleven and twelve o'clock of the night of alarms, Sheriff Harding's party of special deputies began to assemble. Under each man's saddle flap was slung the regulation weapon of the West—a scabbarded repeating rifle; and the small troop bunching itself in the river road looked serviceably militant and businesslike.

An automobile rolled silently down the main road from the north and came to a stand among the horses. The sheriff drew rein beside the car and spoke to one of the two occupants.

"Well, Mr. Smith, we're all here," "How many?" was the curt question.

"Twenty." "Good. Here is your authority," handing the legal papers to the officer.

"Before we go in you ought to know the facts. A few hours ago a man named McGraw, calling himself a deputy United States marshal and claiming to be acting under instructions from Judge Lorching's court in Red Butte, took possession of our dam and camp. On the even chance that he isn't what he claims to be, we are going to arrest him and every man in his crowd. Are you game for it?"

"I'm game to serve any papers that Judge Warner's got the nerve to issue," was the big man's reply.

"That's the talk; that's what I hoped to hear you say. Was Stanton arrested?"

"He sure was. Strothers found him in the Hopkin House bar, and the line of talk he turned loose would have set a wet blanket afire. Just the same, he had to go along with Jimmie and get himself looked up."

"That is the first step; now if you're ready, we'll take the next."

Harding rode forward and the advance began. For the first time or so the midnight silence was unbroken save by the subdued progress noises and the murmurings of the nearby river in its bed. Once Smith took the wheel while Starbuck rolled and lighted a cigarette. It was Starbuck who harked back to the talk which had been so abruptly broken off.

"Let's not head into this ruction with an unpecked bone betwixt us, John," he began gently. "Maybe I said too much, back yonder at the foot of the hill."

"No; you didn't say too much," was the low-toned reply. And then: "Billy, a few months ago I was jerked out of my place in life and set down in another place where practically everything I had learned as a boy and man had to be forgotten. I don't know that I'm making it understandable to you, but—"

"Yes, you are," broke in the man at the wheel. "I've had to turn two or three little double corners myself in the years that are gone."

"They used to call me 'Monty-Boy,' back there in Lawrenceville, and I fitted the name," Smith went on. "I've

"They Used to Call Me Monty-Boy."

Just had to do the best I could out here. I found that I had a body that could stand man-sized hardship, and a kind of savage nerve that could give and take punishment, and a soul that could drive both body and nerve to the limit. Also, I've found out what it means to love a woman."

Starbuck checked the car's speed a little more to keep it well in the rear of the ambulating cavalcade.

"That's your one best bet, John," he said solemnly.

"It is. I've cleaned out another room since you called me down back yonder in the Little Creek road. Starbuck, I can't trust my own feelings any more; they are altogether too primitive and brutal; so I'm going to take hers. She's send me into this fight that is just ahead of us, and all the other fights that are coming, with a heart big enough to take in the whole world.

She said I'd understand, some day; that I'd know that the only great man is one who is too big to be little, who can fight without hating; who can die to make good; if that is the only way that offers.

"What's Corry Baldwin, every day in the week, John? They don't make 'em any finer than she is," was Starbuck's comment. And then: "I'm going to kick myself for not letting you go and have one more round-up with her. She's doing you good, right along."

"You didn't stop me," Smith said, frowning; "you merely gave me a chance to stop myself. It's all over now, Billy and my little race is about run. But whatever happens to me, either this night, or beyond it, I shall be a free man. You can't put handcuffs on a soul and send it to prison, you know. That is what Corry was trying to make me understand; and I couldn't—er wouldn't."

Over a low hill just ahead the pole-bracketed lights at the dam were staring themselves against the sky, and the group of horsemen halted at the head of the railroad trestle which marked the location of the north side unloading station. Harding had sent two of his men forward and they reported that there were no guards on the north bank, and that the strings on the downstream face of the dam were also unguarded. Thereupon Harding made his dispositions. Half of the posse was to go up the northern bank, dismounted, and rush the camp by way of the stappings. The remaining half, also on foot, was to cross the bridge at the railroad trestle, and to make its approach by way of the wagon road skirting the mesa foot. At an agreed-upon signal the two detachments were to clear in upon the company buildings in the construction camp, trusting to the surprise and the attack from opposite directions to overcome any disparity in numbers.

At Smith's urgings, Starbuck went with the party which crossed by way of the railroad trestle, Smith himself accompanying the sheriff's detachment. With the horses left behind under guard at the trestle head, the up-river approach was made by both parties simultaneously, though in the darkness, and with the breadth of the river intervening, neither could see the movements of the other. Smith kept his place beside Harding, and to the sheriff's query he answered that he was unarmed.

"You've got a nerve," was all the comment Harding made, and as "hat they topped the slight elevation and came among the stone debris in the north-side quarries.

From the quarry cutting the view struck out by the camp maindams was unobstructed. The dam and the uncompleted power house, still figuring to the eye as skeleton masses of form timbering in just below them, and on the latter side the flooding torrent thundered through the spillway gates, which had been opened to their fullest capacity. Between the quarry and the northern dam-head ran the smooth concrete channel of the main ditch canal, with the water in the reservoir lake still lapping several feet below the level of its entrance to give assurance that, until the spillways should be closed, the charter-saving stream would never pour through the canal.

On the opposite side of the river the dam-head and the camp street were deserted, but there were lights in the commissary, in the office shack, and in Blue Pete Simms' canteen doorway. From the latter quarter sounds of revelry rose above the spillway thunderings, and now and again a drunken figure lurched through the open door to make its way uncertainly toward the rank of bunk houses.

Harding was staring into the farther nimbus of the electric rays, trying to pick up some sign of the other half of his posse, when Smith made a suggestion.

"Both of your parties will have the workmen's bunk houses in range, Mr. Harding, and we mustn't forget that Colonel Baldwin and Williams are prisoners in the timekeeper's shack. If the guns have to be used—"

CAN EAT ONIONS, PIE, CABBAGE AND CAKE, SHE SAYS

But 'Twas Vastly Different With Mrs. Keener Before Nerv-Worth Came.

Only those persons who have gone through the happy experience recorded in the following signed statement can fully realize the deep pleasures of the table. One must have suffered severely from indigestion and then found a way to eat without distress if he wants to know what the enjoyment of his meals really means. Mrs. Parthena Keener, of Montana Mines, near Fairmont, W. Va., found such enjoyment by the use of Nerv-Worth, as the following letter, which she wrote some time ago to her Fairmont drug-gist, fully proves:

"I have taken three bottles of Nerv-Worth and it has helped me wonderfully."

"I was so nervous that I could not stand the noise of children playing."

"I now can eat onions, cabbage, cake and pie."

"I now can sleep nine hours."

The President's "appeal to the people" is ringing in our ears and every true American heart responds: "Here am I. How can I serve?"

The answer is for every one to do the thing for which he or she is best fitted. But there is ONE WAY in which ALL can serve alike. HOW COAL INDUSTRY MAY HELP NATION IN PRESENT CRISIS

Secretary Lane Points Out the Necessity for Co-operation.

VOLUNTARY AID IS BEST

Production and Transportation Are the Great Problems to be Dealt With, But Neither Will be Solved by the Want of Some Magical Wand.

At the formation of the Committee on Coal Production, in Washington last week, Franklin K. Lane, Secretary of the Interior, made an address to the coal men present in which he pointed out very clearly the means by which the coal industry can render help to the nation in the existing crisis.

"The idea," said Secretary Lane, "that we are now working out is to get not only the coal men of the United States, but those men who are large employers of labor, who are capitalists, in the sense that they use capital for the development of resources, to cooperate together in meeting the national need. I don't know to what extent you realize, but I presume you do realize as fully as myself, the greatness of this occasion. Not merely as a matter of producing men, and feeding men and getting them over to the other side, but producing also those things that the allies need, and that we ourselves need."

"War is now an industrial game; and the foundation of industry, as we know it now, is coal. And so it is that you are at the very root and foundation of the great war industry. Unless we have an abundance, or at least a sufficiency of coal, war cannot be carried on."

"Now there are two ways of dealing with a problem of this kind. One way is by the hearty cooperation of the men already engaged in the industry. The other way is by compulsion. My experience in the Interstate Commerce Commission led me to believe that the larger men in the railroad industry had quite as much vision as I had, and if I could show them the importance of an occasion they would try to meet it. So, instead of resorting to compulsion, instead of taking over mines and great operating plants, we are endeavoring to put you men to your best."

"This war is a challenge to us. It is a challenge to every miner and to every operator, to every railroad man and to every inventor, as well as a challenge to every soldier. It is up to us to show what we can do; to prove to the men on the other side of the water that out of 150 years of freedom and the exercise of personal initiative and political independence we have developed a quality of genius that is superior to what they have been able to develop in the shorter period that they have enjoyed the benefit of free institutions. We have a reputation throughout the world as the world's greatest organizers. Let us prove that the reputation is deserved."

"The problem that confronts us is not merely to meet our own demand, but a world demand when necessary. That is what this is. You know what coal is selling for in Italy, in Portugal, and in France. We do not know how much of that demand must be met from American mines. I think that by fall it will be up to us to contribute very largely to the support of the munition works and the other industries, as well as the domestic supply of those countries across the water."

"Ours will be a problem of production and a problem of transportation to the seaboard, and then, somehow, out of the blue, must come some way of solving the problem of getting the coal across the water."

"As I said at the beginning, a war cannot be carried on today without coal. So, in working for Uncle Sam you are working for those on the other side of the water and behind him; for the little powers that have been oppressed and for the great powers struggling for their lives."

"There are many men who believe that all of these problems can be solved by some wave of a magic wand. You who have dealt with men and with large problems know that there is no such mysterious way of solving these great problems."

"What do the railroads expect to do? They have gathered the executives of 250,000 miles of railroad, and have organized them practically as a single unit. They have brought them together upon the theory that the committee of five should handle them as one system, in so far as service is concerned."

"The railroad committee will work with you in all earnestness. There should be no such thing as empty movement; they should take off some passenger train locomotives to put into freight service; they should appeal to the patriotism of the public and cut down the demurrage time; and generally institute such reforms as to give the greatest possible service to the country."

"The same spirit actuates you that actuates them. You must use much the same methods. You will have to do some things that, no doubt, some will object to. You will have to do some things that will upset, to some extent, I fear, previous long-standing conditions. I myself am not able to see why all the mines should compete with one another. It strikes me that the railroad men and yourselves can meet this situation. I can see where it may be necessary to have some change in the ordinances of some cities with respect to the character of coal used. All these things must be done tentatively, simply as a war or emergency measure."

ILLEGITIMATE CHILDREN

Are Not Entitled to Compensation According to a Decision of the State Board of Reviewing a Referee.

The State Workmen's Compensation Board, in reversing Referee Snyder, has decided that an illegitimate child cannot be a compensation beneficiary under the law. The case was that of an appeal from Snyder's decision by the State Workmen's Compensation Fund, Lawrence A. McConnell.

McConnell was killed while at work, his employer carrying the insurance with the state fund. It was found that McConnell's marriage to Sarah Mary Lutzinger had been set for the day following the accident that caused his death. The license had been issued and the banns published three times. Two months afterward the woman gave birth to a child, and a claim was made for compensation for the child, which therefore was allowed, after finding that the decedent was the father of the child.
